

The Band of The Yorkshire Regiment

• WHAT WE DO

Most of your time will be spent improving your musical skills rehearsing in the concert band and ensembles. We undertake many engagements ranging from regimental dinner nights, marching displays, concerts, ensembles and many other less formal groups. All members of the band have the opportunity to travel throughout the UK and occasionally abroad.

• WHAT YOU'LL GET

Joining an Army Reserve Band gives you the chance to play music professionally, meet new friends, improve your musical skills and gain civilian and military qualifications. There is a minimum yearly commitment which includes, weekend training, a 15-day Annual Musical Training Deployment and training rehearsals on Wednesday evenings.

The Army Reserve acknowledges the personal and professional obligations of civilian life, giving flexibility to individuals to enable you to commit according to your needs.

• DEVELOP YOUR SKILLS

The Band of The Yorkshire Regiment offers you a great way to develop your musical skills and make great friends - without giving up your civilian job. So if you are up to the challenge we would like to hear from you. We will show you around and let you know what being in the Army Reserves is all about.

• TOP UP YOUR PAY

All rehearsals and band engagements are paid Regular Army daily rates of pay, travel expenses and a Tax Free Training Bounty - when you fulfil your minimum training commitment.

Band members are also rewarded with an additional yearly bonus which reflects your level of attendance through the training year.

The Training Bounty and Attendance Bonus are paid at the end of the training year.

In addition, from April 2015 Army Reservists will also qualify for a pension.
